WEST SIDE TENNIS CLUB.

FOREST HILLS, L. I., Aug. 12.—A record crowd of 13,000 witnessed the opening matches here to-day in the challenge round for the Davis Tennis Cup between Australia and the defending American team. The result of the first match being in favor of Australia, the great audience got fresh enthusiasm in rooting for the American when the second match was called. The first and second matches fought to-day were singles.

Nothing like the fight in the second singles between McLaughlin for America and Brookings for Australia was ever witnessed at a tennis match. It was dead even from the start, each man evening up an advantage when it came his turn to serve. It was not until the thirty-second game that McLaughlin de-fated Brookings and won the set 17 to 15.

McLaughlin dashingly won the second set in quick time, 6-3.

McLaughlin won match and third set—score, 6-3.

Anthony Wilding of New Zealand showed a gallery of 13,000 why he is the greatest tennis player in the world when he defeated R. Norris Williams in three straight sets in the opening match between Australia and the United States for the possession of the Davis Cup, emblematic of the world's tennis championship.

Williams, the second best player in this country, was no match for the giant Australian. Wilding outclassed his younger opponent from first to last. Williams never had a chance against the famous visitor.

The American's greatest weakness was his wildness. He frequently dove wildly when having good chances to win.

Wilding, on the other hand, never became unsteady and grew stronger as the match continued.

Williams rallied gamely in the final set, but it was only a flash, Wilding finishing out the remaining games without being overworked.

Both Wilding and Williams were freely applauded.

Anthony Wilding of Australia met

A. Norris Williams, the American, in the first set.

Wilding won the first set, 7 games
